

COMPULSORY SCHOOL ATTENDANCE AND CHILD LABOR: A STUDY OF THE
HISTORICAL DEVELOPMENT OF
REGULATIONS COMPELLING ATTENDANCE
AND LIMITING THE LABOR OF CHILDREN IN A SELECTED GROUP OF STATES

Published @ 2017 Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd

ISBN 9780649093441

Compulsory school attendance and child labor: a study of the historical development of regulations compelling attendance and limiting the labor of children in a selected group of states
by Forest Chester Ensign

Except for use in any review, the reproduction or utilisation of this work in whole or in part in any form by any electronic, mechanical or other means, now known or hereafter invented, including xerography, photocopying and recording, or in any information storage or retrieval system, is forbidden without the permission of the publisher, Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd, PO Box 1576 Collingwood, Victoria 3066 Australia.

All rights reserved.

Edited by Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd.
Cover @ 2017

This book is sold subject to the condition that it shall not, by way of trade or otherwise, be lent, re-sold, hired out, or otherwise circulated without the publisher's prior consent in any form or binding or cover other than that in which it is published and without a similar condition including this condition being imposed on the subsequent purchaser.

www.triestepublishing.com

FOREST CHESTER ENSIGN

COMPULSORY SCHOOL ATTENDANCE AND CHILD LABOR: A STUDY OF THE
HISTORICAL DEVELOPMENT OF
REGULATIONS COMPELLING ATTENDANCE
AND LIMITING THE LABOR OF CHILDREN IN A SELECTED GROUP OF STATES

COMPULSORY SCHOOL ATTENDANCE AND CHILD LABOR

COMPULSORY SCHOOL ATTENDANCE AND CHILD LABOR

A STUDY OF THE HISTORICAL DEVELOPMENT OF REG-ULATIONS COMPELLING ATTENDANCE AND LIMITING THE LABOR OF CHILDREN IN A SELECTED GROUP OF STATES

BY
FOREST CHESTER ENSIGN

Submitted in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, in the Faculty of Philosophy,
Columbia University
1921

CONTENTS

	Page
INTRODUCTION . . . . .	1

CHAPTER I

ENGLISH FOUNDATIONS

Principles common to American state school systems—Compulsion almost universal—Fundamental conceptions of child control extend to early English customs and laws—Significance of laws of Edward III—Connection between freedom and pauperism—Statute of Labourers—Beginning of compulsory employment—Movement from country to town—All children of poor to engage in labor—Attendance at school an alternative—Gradual development of taxation for care of poor—Industrial training of poor children compulsory—Machinery of Church employed in providing funds—Poor laws of Henry VIII—Development under Elizabeth—Final steps—Enforcement of compulsory employment and industrial training—Literary education in time of Henry VIII and Elizabeth—Principles established by 1600 . . . . . 7

CHAPTER II

THE COLONIAL PERIOD

Expansion of English educational traditions in America—Settlers around Massachusetts Bay—Granted all rights of other English subjects—A select group—Not free from poverty and crime—English customs and laws controlling—Desire to utilize labor of children—Compulsory employment in 1641—The law of 1642, compulsory employment and compulsory education—English poor-laws duplicated—The law of 1647, compulsory schools—Support of early schools—Falling standards—Education in Connecticut—Connecticut code of 1700—Revision of 1701—Economic prosperity—Educational provisions not enforced . . . . . 17

CHAPTER III

EARLY NATIONAL PERIOD

Close of first and opening of second period in history of employment and education of children—Compulsory education not stressed in early state constitutions—Educational systems resting on early laws for control of poor—New use for children in England—Industrial conditions in America—Hamilton's ideals for employment

E. v
452370

	Page
of children—Care of mill children—Samuel Slater's Sunday school— Development of factories—New industrial opportunities for children —David Humphreys and the education of mill children—The Con- necticut law of 1813—Organized labor begins to be felt—Industrial- educational problems in Massachusetts—Legislative investigation of 1825—Antagonism of employer and laborer—Investigation by New England Association of farmers, mechanics and other working men —James G. Carter and legislative investigating committee—The child labor law of 1836—Charity idea in education—Organized labor and education in Pennsylvania—Place of pauper school in Pennsyl- vania—Organized labor and education in New York—New forces . . .	30

CHAPTER IV

MASSACHUSETTS

The State Board of Education—Horace Mann its first secretary— Educational conditions met by Mann—Mann not especially interest- ed in factory children—Operation of law of 1836—Mann not an advocate of compulsory school attendance—Inadequacy of means of education—Local school committees directed to enforce attend- ance requirements, 1842—Inadequacy of educational statistics— Enactment of truancy law, 1850—First general compulsory attend- ance law, 1852—Failure to enforce law of 1852—Mann's successor in office—Towns required to provide for care of truants and delin- quents, 1862—Towns fail to meet responsibility—State funds withheld—Legislative investigation, 1866—Law of 1866—Revision of 1867—Henry K. Oliver special enforcing officer—Difficulties of enforcement—Creation of bureau of statistics and labor—Movement for a ten-hour day—Compulsory attendance requirements met in evening schools—Further legislation for control of truancy—Lack of harmony between labor and attendance laws—Carrol D. Wright becomes chief of bureau of labor statistics, 1874—His attitude to- wards law enforcement—Larger state powers in law enforcement— Child labor act of 1878—More adequate employment certificate, 1888 —Additional restrictions on employment of children—Poverty no longer grounds for exemption from school attendance—Employment and school attendance investigated by state board of education— Legislation following board's investigation—A period of consolida- tion of legislative gains—Compulsory medical inspection of schools, first in United States—Interest in industrial education—Inquiry of 1906—Recommendations of the commission, and legislation follow- ing—Reorganization of state board of education—Part-time classes and continuation schools—Compulsory attendance optional with local school committees—State board of labor and industries created, 1912—Echoes of early approval of child labor—Recent changes in regulations—Contribution of Massachusetts . . .	48
---	----

CHAPTER V
CONNECTICUT

	Page
Leads in state enforcement of attendance and labor laws—Earlier periods not unlike Massachusetts—Organized labor not so important a factor in later development—Henry Barnard's educational leadership—Law of 1842—Period of weak state organization—Legislative investigation of 1844—Advances toward state control, 1845—Return of Henry Barnard—His attitude toward child labor—Restrictions on employment, 1855—Civil War checks educational progress—State Board of Education created, 1865—Truant law, 1865—Significance of law of 1869—Henry M. Cleveland state enforcing agent—Agitation for general compulsory attendance law—Enactment of compulsory law, 1872—Giles Potter becomes state agent—Methods of enforcement—More adequate laws—Act of 1886—Larger manufacturers coöperating—Inadequate schooling certificate—Unsatisfactory attendance—Laws of 1893 and 1895—Relatively high rank of state in educational requirements—Coöperation of teachers in law enforcement—System rounded out in acts of 1911 and 1913—Interpretation of the state board—Attendance—School census—Employment certificate—Present enforcement—The unemployed child—Recognition of relationship between child employment and school attendance . . . . .	87

CHAPTER VI
NEW YORK

Compulsory education in poor-houses, 1831—Delay in development of public school system—Early attitude toward employment of children—Legislative investigation of 1830—Attempts to secure legislation—Truancy law of 1853—Compulsory attendance act of 1874—Failure to enforce—Increase of child labor and investigation of 1884—Elbridge T Gerry and influence of philanthropic forces—Child labor act of 1886—Weakness of law of 1886—Granting of working papers entrusted to local boards of health—Report of the Reinhardt commission—Mercantile law, 1896—Enforcement by local boards of health—Compulsory attendance act, 1894—Administration of attendance law—Closer union of forces opposed to labor of children—Organization and early activity of New York Child Labor Committee—Legislation of 1903—Advanced position of New York state—Difficulties in law enforcement—Political aspects—Advances of 1907, 1908—Enforcement—Failure of school officials to coöperate—Failure of school and employment officials to coöperate—A period of consolidation—Permanent census—Factory investigating commission—Reorganization of department of labor—More efficient child labor regulations—The Industrial Commission—
--

	Page
General permanent census law—Compulsory military and physical education—Compulsory evening and continuation schools—Summary of regulations concerning education and employment of children—Enforcement in New York City—The attendance bureau—Enforcement in state as a whole—Progress towards state supervision of attendance . . . . .	115

CHAPTER VII

PENNSYLVANIA

Among last of northern states to provide for compulsory education and to restrict employment—Fight for free schools—The pauper school law—Opposition to free schools by German element—Early discussion of non-attendance—Legislative investigation of child labor, 1837—Child labor law of 1848—Failure to enforce—Superintendent Wickersham slow to favor compulsory attendance—Great number of children out of school—Child labor law of 1887—Agitation for compulsory school attendance—Attendance law of 1895—Further restrictions of child labor—Compulsory attendance law of 1901—Inadequacy of restrictions on child labor—National and State Child Labor Committees enter field in 1904—Law of 1905—Law declared unconstitutional—Return to old conditions—Legislation of 1909, result of union of all forces opposed to child labor—Interests of labor and education served in new legislation—Revised code—Creation of state board of education—Provision made for vocational education—Department of labor and industry created—Measures of 1915 rounding out system of industrial education—Adequate child labor legislation—Compulsory continuation schools established—Success of continuation education—Operation of system in city of Pittsburgh—Beginning of state enforcement of attendance—New system growing in favor throughout the state . . . . . 170

CHAPTER VIII

WISCONSIN

Wisconsin most successful in adapting education to changing industrial conditions—Establishment of education under constitution—School officials disturbed by poor attendance—Compulsory attendance laws feared—Attempt to secure compulsory law—Investigation authorized—Argument against compulsory measures—Law enacted, 1879—Child labor legislation, 1877—Creation of bureau of labor statistics—Factory inspection undertaken, 1885—Bennet compulsory school and attendance law—Opponents of Bennet law enter politics—Repeal of law, 1891—Decade of inactivity—Investigation of child labor situation—More adequate attendance legislation—Further restriction of employment—Movement toward industrial

	Page
education—Special commission to study needs—System of industrial education established—Organization—The continuation schools—Apprenticeship system—Work of Industrial Commission—Present provisions of child labor laws—Enforcement—Operation in Milwaukee—Attempt at state supervision of attendance—Service performed by Wisconsin . . . . .	203

CHAPTER IX ✓

SUMMARY AND CONCLUSION

Legislative investigations as basis of compulsory measures—Changes in attitude toward child—Prime movers for protection of children—Some of the retarding influences—Exemption from requirements of attendance laws—Compulsory health provisions—Working papers—Direct state enforcement—Federal coöperation—Penalties—Decrease in illiteracy—Part-time schools—Outlook—Advance from early English foundations . . . . .	231
BIBLIOGRAPHY . . . . .	256