To the Class of Nineteen Hundred

*O'er the bright meadows all
Shadows at last must fall ;
Twilight must gently steal
O'er vale and dell.
So o'er our laughter light
Softly there fall to-night
Shadows of what we feel
Saying farewell.*

*Swiftly the years have fled
By joyous labor sped ;
Now Nineteen Hundred's day
Soon will be o'er.
Still shall their spirit strong
Linger the years along ;
In Holyoke's life shall they Live evermore.*

*Seniors, we yield to you
Honor and reverence true,
Love that our lives alone
Fitly can show.
Strong in that love we stand,
Pledged to a service grand ;
Where you the way have shown
Forward we 'll go.*

—June 6, 1900.
