PREFACE.

N ANY men never have known the pleasure of being loved by man's best friend. They consequently have never learned to love this faithful animal friend—the truest on earth to man. They are like the poor fellow with the muck rake who was so busy enriching himself with the foul products of earth that he could not see the mellow rays of an evening sunset, nor inhale the fragrance of the violet at his feet.

Poor fellow, he never owned nor loved a dog, nor would a decent dog have cared for his love.

But the Almighty certainly created the dog for companionship with mankind, and true to his instincts, he will return tenfold in love and loyalty all we can do for him. But in the parlance of the Old Virginia Gentleman, he must be treated like a white man, and that means something more than crnsts and kicks and sleeping on the ash-pile.

This little book is intended to fill a want yet un-filled, as many dog books as we have, for it teaches how to care for, train and treat the diseases of your bird dog, and does not keep you constantly buying dog foods and dog remedies, but tells you what to get, how to prepare and how to use remedies after you have prepared them.

It is written by a dog lover, a dog owner, a huntsman and a medical doctor, and it is what you need.

*To the memory of my dear friend,
HUNTER,
who has given me many happy days afield,
this little book is lovingly dedicated.*
