THE ART AND MISSION OF THE KINDERGARTNER

“To be a kindergartner is the perfect development of womanliness, — a working with God at the very fountain of artistic and intellectual power and moral character. It is therefore the highest finish that can be given to a woman’s education to be trained for a kindergartner.” — ELIZABETH PALMER PEABODY.

AMONG the other vocations which have grown up for women in the last quarter century, none is more important, or significant of better things, than that which embraces the training and culture of childhood, for it has drawn into the channel of a scientifically learned and practiced profession the best and highest instincts of the sex.

Frederic Denison Maurice says: “The zeal which has been awakened respecting infant education has been of infinite worth, for it is impossible in educating little children to think chiefly of reading, writing, and ciphering. We are compelled to remember that we have living spirits to deal with, which must, by most wonderful and
