PREFACE

The practical value of Latin in increasing the pupil's earning capacity, by insuring a more complete mastery of the English language than would be possible otherwise, is strongly emphasized in the school of to-day.

In preparing this compilation of LATIN STEMS AND ENGLISH DERIVATIVES FOR SECOND YEAR LATIN two definite purposes have been maintained:

1. To economize the pupil's time and energy by paralleling Latin original and English derivative in order to effect association of ideas;
2. To present the relation of the Latin to the English in so striking a form that it will arouse the interest of the pupil in word formation and stimulate him to be on the alert for the Latin in English words in order to discover their meaning.

The plan is:

1. To translate the Latin word;
2. To reprint the stem;
3. To define the derivative in simple terms close to its original meaning;
4. Thus to present the stem in three places, in the Latin word, in the reprint, and in the English derivative;
5. To present the meaning in two places, in the translation and in the definition of the derivative.

The object of this arrangement is not to save thought, for the finding of other derivatives will furnish opportunity for original thinking; but to make the current of thought clear and rapid by substituting association of ideas for mere memory.

The writer has used the list both as an aid to the student in memorizing the Latin words and as a means of intensifying and extending his English vocabulary.

The list contains the principal thought words that are used six or more times in the first five books of the Gallic War.

Grateful acknowledgement is due Dr. Wallace S. Elden, of the Department of Latin, Ohio State University, Dr. Edward C. Chickering, of the Jamaica High School, New York City, and Mr. Frank Whitehouse, Principal of High School, Mansfield, Ohio, who have rendered valuable assistance by their suggestions and criticisms.
