CONTENTS.

INTRODUCTION.

CHAPTER I.

MATTER AND SPIRIT.

What man is. His Body is Matter. What we know about Matter. The Soul is Spirit. What we know about Spirit. - - - - -	1
--	---

CHAPTER II.

THE TESTIMONY OF CONSCIOUSNESS.

Consciousness the basis of all Evidence, as respects the Senses; the Intellect; the Moral Man. Freedom. Order of the Development of our Faculties. Ground of the Infidel. Consciousness a sure foundation for Religious Faith. - - - - -	13
--	----

CHAPTER III.

THE OUTER AND THE INNER MAN.

Creation works for the Soul. Providence does also. The ancient Roman contrasted with ourselves. The departed child. The various Forms of Religion, Egyptian, Grecian, Hindoo, Mexican, &c., point to the Inner Man. Happiness, how promoted; Grief. Life, what it is. 23	23
--	----

CHAPTER IV.

THE SCRIPTURE ESTIMATE OF THE SOUL AND THE BODY.

Man a "LIVING SOUL." The Old Covenant recognises this view. Christ came to the Soul. "The Witness within." Death affects the Body alone. The Body not, however, to be vilified. View of an old English writer.

30

CHAPTER V.

THE PROPER KIND OF EVIDENCE FOR RELIGION.

A wrong kind required. The Senses cannot weigh Moral Evidence. The rising Moon. Our Personal Identity, how known. The skeptic's demand. Error of La Place and others. A fellow-traveller, and the rose. "The Laws of Nature." Nature has Inward laws. Religion alone can develop our Nature. Extremes involve Error. The extreme of Doubt.

37

CHAPTER VI.

THE FAITH OF THE AFFECTIONS.

Religion consists mainly in Love. Experience alone makes it intelligible. Music, by whom appreciated. Objection. Rank of the Intellect. Development of our Moral Constitution. The Infant loves. Feeling, the spring of excellence. The Genius of Christianity. How convert an Unbeliever, or a Worldling.

CHAPTER VII.

THE SOUL THE TEST OF EXTERNAL EVIDENCE.

The Jews demanded a "Sign." Miracles require of us "The Spirit of Truth." Testimony of Rousseau. Christ supernaturally Inspired. The Selfish cannot appreciate the "Works" of Christ. Hobbes, Paine, &c. The Resurrection of Christ. Remark from Reed on the "Growth of the Mind." Three classes of unbelievers. Unbelief not always culpable. Wrong estimate of Miracles. Intended usually to confirm, not originate, Faith. Not to be rejected because unintelligible. Neither the basis of every Revelation. Their great value. 62

CHAPTER VIII.

THE SOUL RECOGNIZES A LAW.

The words Right, Wrong, Retribution, where originated. The Sense of Right; of good and ill Desert; of Moral Freedom; of Obligation. Individuality. Belief in Divine Justice. The nature of Virtue. Consciousness of a Law, universal. The Battas of Sumatra. The bridge of Al-Sirat. Governments based on Moral Law. Mistake in regard to Retribution. Virgil's idea of it. The Moral Law irpealable; never a dead letter. - - 80

CHAPTER IX.

GOD SEEN IN, AND BY, THE SOUL.

Two modes of proving the existence of God. By outward things, and by the Soul. The North American Indian. Conscionsness. Mr. Locke's view of Intuition. God manifested by the Aspirations of the Soul; by our sense of Cause and Effect; by the creations of Art; by Pagan deities. Man desires a Model; is disposed to Veneration. The sense of God, common to all. Objections. "There are Atheists." "Religion comes from Priestcraft;" "from Fear;" "from Ignorance." "Reason cannot prove a God." Gravitation, Magnetism, the Rose.

CHAPTER X.

THE SOUL PERCEIVES ITS OWN IMMORTALITY.

Man, how far connected with the brute. Scripture testifies to Immortality. Few have Faith in it. Man's Alliance with Superior beings often cited as an evidence. His relation to the inferior creatures. Their Physical powers superior to ours. Instinct a perfect guide. The animals have no presentiment of Death. How are our disadvantages counterpoised. Our powers not soon perfected. Man Master of the brute; a final End of earth. Our Desires. We are dissatisfied with this Life; with our Work here. Capacity for unlimited Improvement. SELF-CULTURE. Power of Communication. Disinterestedness.

111

CHAPTER XI.

THE SOUL PERCEIVES ITS OWN IMMORTALITY.

Conscience peculiar to man. Disproportion between the tasks of Body and Soul. Sphere of Beauty; Mozart, Raphael, Milton. Man is Prospective. The widow of Lord Kildare. Man a Religious being. The Natchez Indian. ABSOLUTE PROOFS OF IMMORTALITY. Increase of Knowledge. Man prejudges the occupations of Futurity. The Normans. Our Desires; usually gratified. The prospect of Death. Sentiments relative to the Dead. Sacredness of their Memory. The body of a friend. Reverence for the Tomb. God immortal; Man in his Image. Christianity, on any estimate of its origin, a proof of man's Immortality. Its power Invincible.	125

CHAPTER XII.

THE INSPIRATION OF THE ALMIGHTY UNIVERSAL.

Statement of Scripture on this point. A truth received by all nations. Inspiration of Washington. The Pulpit. All inspired at their birth. The Heathen still further inspired. So are all, if Scripture be true. God inspires us through Common Sense; through Conscience; through the Sentiment of Faith. An Objection. Remark of Mel-mouth. Objections drawn from Ignorance, and Sin. The inspired only can understand the inspired Scriptures. The sense of moral Beauty universal. Final Reference to Consciousness. The sublime functions of this power. The times forbid us to disparage it.	142
