BOOK I.

CONTAINING DIVERS INGENUOUS THEORIES AND PHILOSOPHIC SPECULATIONS CONCERNING THE CREATION AND POPULATION OF THE WORLD, AS CONNECTED WITH THE HISTORY OF NEW YORK.

CHAP. I.—Description of the World . . . . .	33
CHAP. II.—Cosmogony, or Creation of the World; with a multitude of excellent theories, by which the creation of a world is shown to be no such difficult matter as common folk would imagine, . . . . .	43
CHAP. III.—How that famous navigator, Noah, was shamefully nicknamed; and how he committed an unpardonable oversight in not having four sons; with the great trouble of philosophers caused thereby, and the discovery of America . . . . .	55
CHAP. IV.—Showing the great difficulty philosophers have had in peopling America; and how the aborigines came to be begotten by accident—to the great relief and satisfaction of the Author . . . . .	64

- CHAP. V.—In which the Author puts a mighty question to the rout, by the assistance of the Man in the Moon; which not only delivers thousands of people from great embarrassment, but likewise concludes this introductory book . . . . . 74

BOOK II.

TREATING OF THE FIRST SETTLEMENT OF THE PROVINCE OF NEW NEDERLANDS.

- CHAP. I.—In which are contained divers reasons why a man should not write in a hurry; also of Master Hendrick Hudson, his discovery of a strange country, and how he was magnificently rewarded by the munificence of their High Mightinesses . . . . . 96
- CHAP. II.—Containing an account of a mighty Ark which floated, under the protection of St. Nicholas, from Holland to Gibbet Island; the descent of the strange animals therefrom—A great victory, and a description of the ancient village of Communipaw . . . . . III
- CHAP. III.—In which is set forth the true art of making a bargain, together with the miraculous escape of a great metropolis in a fog, and the biography of certain heroes of Communipaw . . . . . 120
- CHAP. IV.—How the heroes of Communipaw voyaged to Hell-gate, and how they were received there . . . . . 131
- CHAP. V.—How the heroes of Communipaw returned somewhat wiser than they went; and how the sage Oloff dreamed a dream, and the dream that he dreamed . . . . . 145
- CHAP. VI.—Containing an attempt at etymology, and of the founding of the great city of New Amsterdam . . . . . 153

Contents

CHAP. VII.—How the people of Pannonia migrated from Communipaw to the island of Manna-hata; and how Oloffe the Dreamer proved himself a great land speculator . . . . .	157
CHAP. VIII.—Of the founding and naming of the new city—Of the city arms, and of the direful feud between Ten Breeches and Tough Breeches, . . . . .	161
CHAP. IX.—How the city of New Amsterdam waxed great under the protection of St. Nicholas and the absence of laws and statutes—How Oloffe the Dreamer began to dream of an extension of empire, and of the effect of his dreams . . . . .	169

BOOK III.

IN WHICH IS RECORDED THE GOLDEN REIGN OF WOUTER VAN TWILLER.

CHAP. I.—Of the renowned Wouter Van Twiller; his unparalleled virtues; as likewise his unutterable wisdom in the law case of Wandie Schoonhoven and Harent Blecker, and the great admiration of the public thereat, . . . . .	178
CHAP. II.—Containing some account of the grand council of New Amsterdam; as also divers especial good philosophical reasons why an alderman should be fat; with other particulars touching the state of the province . . . . .	190
CHAP. III.—How the town of New Amsterdam arose out of mud, and came to be marvellously polished and polite; together with a picture of the manners of our great-great-grandfathers . . . . .	203
CHAP. IV.—Containing farther particulars of the golden age, and what constituted a fine lady and gentleman in the days of Walter the Doubter . . . . .	214

CHAP. V.—Of the founding of Fort Aurania—Of the mysteries of the Hudson—Of the arrival of the patroon Killian Van Rensselaer; his lordly descent upon the earth, and his introduction of club law . . . . .	222
CHAP. VI.—In which the reader is beguiled into a delectable walk, which ends very differently from what it commenced . . . . .	227
CHAP. VII.—Faithfully describing the ingenious people of Connecticut and therabouts; showing, moreover, the true meaning of liberty of conscience, and a curious device among these sturdy barbarians, to keep up a harmony of intercourse and promote population . . . . .	234
CHAP. VIII.—How these singular barbarians turned out to be notorious squatters; how they built air-castles, and attempted to initiate the Netherlanders into the mystery of bundling . . . . .	242
CHAP. IX.—How the Fort Good Hoop was fearfully beleaguered—How the renowned Wouster fell into a profound doubt, and how he finally evaporated.	250

BOOK IV.

CONTAINING THE CHRONICLES OF THE REIGN OF WILLIAM THE TESTY.

CHAP. I.—Showing the nature of history in general; containing, furthermore, the universal acquirements of William the Testy, and how a man may learn so much as to render himself good for nothing . . . . .	259
CHAP. II.—How William the Testy undertook to conquer by proclamation; how he was a great man abroad, but a little man in his own house . . . . .	267
CHAP. III.—In which are recorded the sage projects of a ruler of universal genius—The art of fight-
