PREFACE.

THE following Sermons form part of a series preached with a view to bring before the congregation of a Parish Church the real character of the Church of Rome, as found in her authoritative declarations, and in the writings of her most celebrated doctors.

Many who heard the Sermons desired to see them in print, and, could the Author have found time to write copious notes shewing his authorities in every case, and the accuracy of every statement he had made, they would have been published by himself. The daily cares of a large parish, however, together with failing health, prevented his doing this; but the three Sermons now offered to the public are so peculiarly applicable to questions agitating the Church at the present time, that it has been thought well to publish them just as they are, as being well calculated to convey to the reader accurate information on a subject, with which it behoves all Christians to be well acquainted. It will be seen that the Writer concurred in the opinion of our early reformers that the Papacy is identical with the "Man of Sin" of St. Paul, and the "Antichrist" of St. John; an opinion which is repudiated by some learned and pious writers of later days. But however men may differ on the interpretation of prophecy, opinions cannot alter facts, nor in any way affect the actual dogmas treated of in these Sermons.

Truth, for itself, and truth for the edification of the souls committed to his charge, was the great aim of the Preacher: may the truths here exhibited be blessed to all who read them.

THE EDITOR.
