Preface

MORE than ten years ago I read a paper to the members of the then recently formed Hull Literary Club, on the architecture of the church which is the subject of the following pages. My essay was afterwards printed in the columns of a local paper, and considerable portions of it have since been unscrupulously plagiarised. I am glad of the opportunity of writing once more about an edifice for which I have great affection, and, at the same time, of amplifying, and, in a few trifling matters, correcting my previous statements.
