IN placing this little work before the public, the authors desire to acknowledge the valuable assistance they have received from the following amongst other friends.

The Rev. Canon Stokes, D.D., the learned author of Ireland and the Celtic Church, and Ireland and the Anglo-Norman Church, &c., &c., has very kindly revised the chapter upon the Antiquities of the Parish, and supplied the materials for interesting notes.

The Rev. William Reynell, S.D., M.R.I.A., placed his ample knowledge of the clergy of the Diocese of Dublin at their disposal, besides furnishing many particulars for the biographical portions of the work.

To John H. Samuels, Esq., the Diocesan Registrar, they desire to return thanks for his unvarying courtesy in affording access to such of the Diocesan Records as remain in his custody.

They are also indebted to J. J. Digges La Touche, Esq., LL.D., Deputy Keeper of the Records, and the other officials in the Record Office, as well as to the officials of the Library and Registrar's Office of Trinity College and of the National Library, Kildare Street.
