TO CROSS WEARERS,
BEARERS,
AND TO THOSE WHO TAKE UP THE CROSS,
THIS FRAGMENT ON THE CROSS IS BY AN OLD CROSS BEARER
(NOT WEARER),
Respectfully Dedicated.

NOTICE.

THIS FRAGMENT, which in fragments has already appeared in a London journal, was undertaken by the writer at the solicitation of a friend, who repeatedly urged him to write on this and on a larger subject—"Rome Pagan, and Rome Papal."

Composed at different times and places, there may be found in the FRAGMENT some want of coherence.

Disinclined to the work, and to the trouble necessarily by such a subject entailed, with reluctance he has yielded to pressure put upon him.

The result, in part, is the subsequent sheets, which, if God give ability, will be followed by an illustrated work on the subject above referred to, years ago planned, and now far advanced, of which this little volume properly forms a part.

To the Cross, in its historic and antiquarian aspect, the writer's mind has only been more recently turned, and that first by an observation on its comparatively modern church introduction in Dean Burgon's "Letters from Rome."

If the result of the labour subsequently spent in the investigation of the subject equals in any degree, to the benefit of some, the sanguine expectation of the writer's late friend, he will indeed be thankful.

M. B.

P.S.—Absence from books, at this great distance from home, precludes the possibility of finally comparing proof-sheets with the volumes referred to.
