

FAITH IN MAN; THE
RELIGION OF THE
TWENTIETH CENTURY

Published @ 2017 Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd

ISBN 9780649289479

Faith in man; the religion of the twentieth century by Gustav Spiller

Except for use in any review, the reproduction or utilisation of this work in whole or in part in any form by any electronic, mechanical or other means, now known or hereafter invented, including xerography, photocopying and recording, or in any information storage or retrieval system, is forbidden without the permission of the publisher, Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd, PO Box 1576 Collingwood, Victoria 3066 Australia.

All rights reserved.

Edited by Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd.
Cover @ 2017

This book is sold subject to the condition that it shall not, by way of trade or otherwise, be lent, re-sold, hired out, or otherwise circulated without the publisher's prior consent in any form or binding or cover other than that in which it is published and without a similar condition including this condition being imposed on the subsequent purchaser.

www.triestepublishing.com

GUSTAV SPILLER

FAITH IN MAN; THE
RELIGION OF THE
TWENTIETH CENTURY

FAITH IN MAN

By the Same Author

---

The Mind of Man :

A TEXT BOOK OF PSYCHOLOGY

By GUSTAV SPILLER

Demy 8vo., 7s. 6d.

"The point of view from which this work is written, will, it is hoped, commend itself to the lovers of science. To my mind, the amazing backwardness of psychology is principally due to it having been almost exclusively cultivated by philosophers or those philosophically inclined, i.e., by those who have settled doctrines to begin with, instead of by men of Science who possess only the desire for truth as such. This work will have fulfilled its author's purpose if it accentuates the need of, and assists in establishing a psychology of a strictly scientific character."—Extract from Preface.

"All that Mr. Spiller says in support of Introspection as 'the method in chief,' and this makes up a considerable portion of the book, deserves careful study. Almost with the fervour of the old devotional writers, he lays stress on the importance of cultivation of habits of correct observation, severe though the discipline be."—Daily Chronicle.

"Mr. Spiller had a sound notion of method; his general point of view is defensive and he makes many acute observations. The method adopted he defines as 'experimental introspection.' Some of the author's most interesting observations, indeed, are directed against all assertions of originality in individuals as distinguished from persons."—Athenaeum.

"Some notes of distinction characterize this work. It shows not a little independence of thought. There is neither subservience to authority in matters of opinion, nor reliance on tradition in methods of exposition. The headings of the chapters—Systems as Distributed; Systems as Organised; Systems as Need-satisfying, and so forth, suggest a freshness of treatment which is in large degree realised in their contents. Constant reference is made to the results of actual experience; the author has worked assiduously in the introspective laboratory of his own mind, and urges his readers to adopt the same course."—School World.

"He has undoubtedly written one of the most original books on psychology that has appeared in recent years. The volume is extremely suggestive throughout."—Philosophical Review.

"Mr. Spiller deserves the thanks of students of psychology for the very able and painstaking manner in which he has presented the various systems of the science."—Liberty Review.

FAITH IN MAN

The Religion of the Twentieth Century

The Essence of Religion—What is Art?—Ethics and Science—
The New Faith and Social Reform—The Relation of the New Faith to Philosophy—The Test of Progress—A Democratic Basis for Education—The Ethical Movement.

BY

GUSTAV SPILLER

(AUTHOR OF "THE MIND OF MAN," ETC.)

LONDON

SWAN SONNENSCHN & Co., LIM.

25 High Street, Bloomsbury, W.C.

1908

HN389

S7

GENERAL

PREFACE

Not all revolutions are heralded and accompanied by disorder and violence.

The revolution in thought which Socrates witnessed, and the great French Revolution were marked, the first by moral confusion, and the second by social anarchy.

A mightier revolution is taking place in our generation,—implying profounder readjustments in men's beliefs and actions than the revolutions referred to,—which proceeds with marvellous rapidity and yet almost without protest.

The Conscience has eclipsed the Scriptures ; Science has destroyed the belief in Divine Interposition ; Democracy and Civism have shown men how to help themselves, and the supreme test and interest of men have become Ethical, and have ceased to be Supernaturalistic. We are even assured that the creeds and dogmas are practical moral helps whose truth is a matter of indifference and that the supreme test of a revival is the ethical result.

It is not that men are becoming indifferent. It is rather that a new faith, the faith in moral endeavour, is displacing the faith in supernatural hopes and fears.

With science and morality dominating men's lives, a radical reconstruction of beliefs has become inevitable, and the object of the present volume is to show the positive and bracing faith in man and society which has been silently emerging out of the bloodless struggle of the last quarter of a century.

GUSTAV SPILLER.

March, 1908.

CONTENTS

CHAP.	PAGE
I. THE ESSENCE OF RELIGION - - -	9
II. WHAT IS ART? - - -	44
III. ETHICS AND SCIENCE - - -	70
IV. THE NEW FAITH AND SOCIAL REFORM -	95
V. THE RELATION OF THE NEW FAITH TO PHILOSOPHY - - - -	115
VI. THE TEST OF PROGRESS - - -	137
VII. A DEMOCRATIC BASIS FOR EDUCATION -	157
VIII. THE ETHICAL MOVEMENT - - -	180