THE AMATEUR ANGLER

*Author of "On a Sunshine Holiday,"
"Days in Dovedale," etc.*

"For I have loved the rural walk through lanes
Of grassy swarth, close cropped by nibbling sheep;
. . . . have loved the rural walk
O'er hills, through valleys, and by river's brink."
Cowper.

TO my son R. B. M. (Piscator Major), and to my good friend G. Y. (The Professor), expert anglers both, my frequent companions on my Angling Excursions, I dedicate this little book.*

The thoughtful care of the former in all that contributes to my welfare, and especially in providing me with the needful implements of destruction when I go a-fishing, and the unselfish anxiety with which the latter, by good advice and ready help, sought to save me from many a scrape into which my juvenile rashness and inexperience must otherwise have plunged me, surely deserve and demand this slight recognition of their goodness, and I seize with pleasure the opportunity which is here afforded me of expressing to them my love, my gratitude, and my good wishes.
