FOREWORD.....	ix
CHAPTER I. WHAT IS THE WORLD FOR?.....	3
The answer to the question, " Cui Bono? " to be judged by the counter-query, "Does the reply or method produce pessimism or peace?"
(a) History shows that the ancient nations trended towards pessimism.
(b) The world-religions, other than Christianity, did not give men peace, but pessimism.
(c) The histories of the different philosophies developed pessimism.
(d) The "Socing is believing" idea. Definition of faith, religion, Christianity.
CHAPTER II. DIFFICULTIES.....	29
Difficulties with the doctrines of the Atonement, the Trinity; and miracles.
CHAPTER III. CHRISTIANITY THE CIVILIZER.....	63
Christianity produces civilization in the nation, preserves the family, gives peace to the individual.
CHAPTER IV. EVOLUTION OF SOUL.....	79
Whence cometh evil? Its use is to awaken the soul of man. Biology of the soul. Evolution of the soul. Strengthening of the soul by (a) obedience; (b) prayer; (c) consecration.

	PAGE
CHAPTER V. MAN ENSOULED.....	104
(A) Soul and soul only can perceive God. (B) Soul and soul only can hear God speak in (i) the laws of nature; (ii) the voice of circumstance; (iii) the voice of friends; (iv) the voice of the Master
CHAPTER VI. CHRISTIANITY TRANSCENDENT.....	123
Christianity removes all fear; it answers the query, "Does God Care?" Christianity alone gives cheer, happiness, peace; it raises man from the sense-plane to the soul-plane. Christianity and Christianity alone answers rightly the riddle of the universe, " Cui Bono? "

FOREWORD

THE object of this brochure is usefulness and service in re-stating some of the eternal verities which condition peace—soul-peace. Whatever there is of good in it is not original, and the one desire and aim is to present in the clearest, simplest way some of the essential truths of Christianity, of which the whole body of Christian people are trustees. It does not pretend to teach an academic theology, but the Christian religion. Theological and academic terms are avoided as much as possible, and common parlance is employed.

There never was a time when thoughtful men and women sought so eagerly after truth as now. It has been said that this was an Age of Doubt, and others have said that it was an Age of Facts: it is more—it is the best age yet in which to live, because the rush for material things is abating, a truer and saner vision of life is dawning, and alongside of an educational-aristocracy, a soul-aristocracy is being evolved. With the increase of wealth there has come a conviction that after
