MARCH, 1917

"We may live without poetry, music and art,
We may live without conscience, and live without heart;
We may live without friends, we may live without books;
But civilized man cannot live without cooks.
He may live without books, what is knowledge but grieving?
He may live without hope, what is hope but deceiving?
He may live without love, what is passion but pining?
But where is the man that can live without dining?"

PREFACE TO FIRST EDITION

THE compilers of a work of such limited scope cannot promise those who use it that they will find everything in its pages, but can heartily assure them that all of the recipes here given have been highly recommended to us by the contributors.

The Committee wishes to extend its appreciative thanks to the Business Public, who have aided the enterprise so materially by using our advertising space, and also to Mrs. H. E. Taylor, of Edwardsville, Ill., who kindly gave us permission to copy from the Edwardsville Cook Book.

PREFACE TO SECOND EDITION

The popularity of the First Edition is the occasion of the republication of this work. The 1000 copies were so quickly disposed of and demands for additional numbers so frequent, that we believe ourselves to be serving the public by re-issuing.
