

RECOLLECTIONS OF DR. JOHN
BROWN, AUTHOR OF 'RAB AND
HIS FRIENDS', ETC., WITH A
SELECTION FROM HIS
CORRESPONDENCE

Published @ 2017 Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd

ISBN 9780649687510

Recollections of Dr. John Brown, Author of 'Rab and His Friends', Etc., with a Selection from His Correspondence by Alexander Peddie

Except for use in any review, the reproduction or utilisation of this work in whole or in part in any form by any electronic, mechanical or other means, now known or hereafter invented, including xerography, photocopying and recording, or in any information storage or retrieval system, is forbidden without the permission of the publisher, Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd, PO Box 1576 Collingwood, Victoria 3066 Australia.

All rights reserved.

Edited by Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd.
Cover @ 2017

This book is sold subject to the condition that it shall not, by way of trade or otherwise, be lent, re-sold, hired out, or otherwise circulated without the publisher's prior consent in any form or binding or cover other than that in which it is published and without a similar condition including this condition being imposed on the subsequent purchaser.

www.triestepublishing.com

ALEXANDER PEDDIE

RECOLLECTIONS OF DR. JOHN
BROWN, AUTHOR OF 'RAB AND
HIS FRIENDS', ETC., WITH A
SELECTION FROM HIS
CORRESPONDENCE

RECOLLECTIONS OF
DR. JOHN BROWN

Author of 'Rab and His Friends,' etc.

WITH A SELECTION FROM HIS CORRESPONDENCE

BY

ALEXANDER PEDDIE

M.D., F.R.C.P., F.R.S.E.

His life was gentle. . . .
Nature he loved, and next to Nature Art.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS

743 and 745 BROADWAY

New York

1893

ILLUSTRATIONS

	PAGE
FRONTISPIECE (from Painting by B. S. Peddie, from Photographs and Memory).
MINTO HOUSE SURGICAL HOSPITAL	10
MR. SYME—CLASS-ROOM SKETCH in 1833	16
DR. BROWN. Photograph in 1866	23
DR. BROWN. Photograph by Fergus, Largs, 1871	34
‘WASP’	39
‘DANDIE AND HIS FRIENDS,’ by Moffat, Edinburgh, 1880	40
‘JEYE BER’	64
‘SIMON MAGUS’	64
‘YOUNG SATURN’	64
‘THE PITLOCHRY DUCK’	67
‘THE HOUSELESS DOGS’	108
PROFESSOR SYME (from Engraving by J. Faed, 1868)	190

INTRODUCTION

A LARGE reprint from the Edinburgh Medical Journal of my presidential address to the Harveian Society in April 1890, entitled 'Dr. John Brown: His Life and Work, with Narrative Sketches of Syme in the Old Minto House Hospital and Dispensary Days,' having been expended among town and country members of that Society, a few other medical men, and old friends of the late Professor Syme and Dr. John Brown, I have been induced by its favourable reception and at the suggestion of many friends to reproduce it more as a biographical sketch of Dr. Brown. To this end much new matter has been introduced, while the bulk of what appeared in the original paper relating to Mr. Syme has been transferred to an Appendix.

Shortly after Dr. Brown's removal from our midst, several touching In Memoriam notices appeared in the newspapers of the day; and subsequently articles in some of the monthlies—namely, an obituary notice in the Edinburgh Medical Journal of June 1882; a highly artistic sketch by Mr. Andrew Lang in the Century Illustrated Monthly Magazine in December 1882;¹ an erudite article by Professor Masson in Macmillan's Magazine of February 1883;² a short but lively paper in 1887 by Miss G. T. Ross; a bright and loving 'Outline' in 1889 by Miss E. T. M'Laren;³ and in the recent January and February numbers of the United Presbyterian Magazine a clever and discriminating article by Robert Richardson, B.A. But notwithstanding these various somewhat fragmentary productions, I am aware that there is a call by many who ardently admired and loved 'Dr. John,' and a strong desire felt by others who have known him only from his writings or name, to have an extended memoir, from which they might learn more about him. I am well aware that the difficulties in undertaking satisfactorily such a task are great; but inspired by long familiar acquaintance with Dr. Brown, and an intimate knowledge and sympathetic appreciation of his character and work, I have endeavoured in the following pages to do my best. In this effort I have chosen, by quotations from his published papers and private correspondence now before me, and from varied reminiscences, to make him to a large extent his own biographer, thus presenting to the reader a truer ideal of the man than could be conveyed by any amount of editorial description, criticism, or literary embellishment.

¹ F. Warne & Co., London and New York.

² Reprinted lately in Edinburgh Sketches and Memories. A. & C. Black, London and Edinburgh.

³ Dr. John Brown and his Sister Isabella. Edinburgh: David Douglas, 1890.

The occasion when the address or 'oration' was delivered was the one hundred and eighth Festival of the Harveian Society of Edinburgh, when I held the honoured position of its President. Then, instead of attempting to dress up in a new garb the well chronicled facts connected with the illustrious William Harvey,¹ his great discovery of the circulation of the blood, or the times in which he lived, or attempting anything on the lines of scientific research, I chose, in accordance with the spirit of Harvey's will, to discourse on those of professional reminiscence and biography. With that intent I selected the memories of James Syme, the distinguished surgeon and teacher, and John Brown, the popular writer and beloved physician; and in the accomplishment of that design I naturally had much to say of their relations to each other and to myself during the important period of our lives—from 1829 to 1852—when Minto House existed, first as a surgical hospital and dispensary, and afterwards as a private maison de santé, and a public dispensary.

¹ See Appendix, No. II.

Many of the Harveians present on the occasion of the Festival were only boys at school in 1870, when Syme died; a larger number were unborn in 1843, the end of his first decade as Professor of Clinical Surgery in the University of Edinburgh; and only one besides myself, namely, Sir Douglas Maclagan, was then present who knew anything of Mr. Syme or John Brown in the early days of Minto House Surgical Hospital. I considered, therefore, that it