THE LITTLE PRINCESS
NARINA AND HER SILVER-
FEATHERED SHOES

* "Did you ever hear
Of the frolic Fairies, dear?
They're a little, blessed race,
Peeping up in Fancy's face,
In the valley, on the hill,
By the fountain and the rill;
Laughing out between the leaves
That the loving summer weaves."

P R E F A C E .

THE purpose or moral of this charming little tale is to illustrate the happy and blessed results of honesty, of truth, and of the faithful and zealous performance of duty.

That the unknown author has chosen to present these invaluable lessons in the guise of a Fairy story will be objected to by no thoughtful person, who reflects how this form attracts and interests those for whom the book is designed.

Many a precious lesson is received into a child's mind and heart through the medium of allegory or narrative, and there fixed, remaining a fruitful source of good deeds long after the story melts away.

J. P. W.
