I DEDICATE THIS BOOK TO THE
COMPANION OF MY PIONEERING—
MY HUSBAND

I should be loath indeed to let this book go into print without some little acknowledgment of the untiring kindness of my friends. This book—like many another, I imagine—would never have been written had it not have been for the faith and encouragement they have so freely given. I want to thank my friend H. E. H. for her unfailing belief in me and her timely and helpful criticism; my husband for his continual delight as this record of our pioncering grew and took shape, and for his assistance in details of the geography and history of the country; my sister for much and varied assistance; and my friend Dr. D. S. F. of Columbia University, for his kindness in reading proof.
