PREFACE.

IN the year 1887, I prepared for publication in "THE LEWIS LETTER," at the request of its editor, a very imperfect genealogy of my branch of the great LEWIS family. In the classification of the various lines of descent published in that paper by the editor, Mr. F. P. Lewis, this was designated as BOOK XVIII. I have therefore entitled this little volume "BOOK XVIII. OF THE GENEALOGY OF THE LEWIS FAMILY." I was so dissatisfied with this first effort, that I then determined to occupy a part of my leisure in searching the records of our family, and in tracing back our descent as far as possible. In doing this I find that BOOK XVIII. merges into, and for several generations, is identical with BOOK XII., as classified by the same authority.

To undertake a complete genealogy of the LEWIS family, would be far beyond the time at my disposal, even were I competent for the task. This work is, I think, contemplated by a man far better qualified than myself, and I do not doubt that many will join me in hoping that he will sometime be able to carry out his purpose. I have simply confined myself to my own branch of the family, excepting that in a few instances I have given some collateral families whose names have incidentally come to me in my researches.

In accomplishing what I here present, I am indebted to many friends for information and suggestions. I cannot name them all. Very many of them are members of some branch of the family, and therefore, in some degree, have an interest in the undertaking. I especially wish to express my obligation to Mr. Rollin H. Cook, of Pittsfield, Mass., who has freely given me the results of years of investigation, and furnished me with copies of numerous old records, through which I have obtained valuable information. I am also indebted to I. W. Havens, of Hartford, Julius Gay, of Farmington, Conn., E. R. Estabrook, of Hoosick Falls, N. Y., and many others, for information of great value to me. To these gentlemen, and all others who have contributed to my knowledge, I desire to make suitable acknowledgements.

I should have been pleased to give in fuller detail the history and characteristics of the children and grandchildren of OLIVER³³ and LUCINDA LEWIS, together with a record of their great-grandchildren, but after some effort I found that to carry out this idea with any degree of accuracy, was a task too great for me to undertake with the time at my command. With a few exceptions, therefore, in which lists have been furnished me, I have confined myself in this respect to my own father's family, but have caused to be bound in the book a few blank pages for family records, upon which any line of descent other than my own may be written out, and upon which future generations may carry down the record of their branch of the family, should they desire to do so.

I have taken considerable pains to be accurate in both names and dates. In all cases where records of the same family, kept by different persons, have disagreed, I have adopted that which seemed to be sustained by the weight of evidence.

If those of the LEWIS family who may receive this, shall consider it of any value, I shall feel myself amply repaid for the time and labor I have given to it.

FIRST GENERATION.

CHAPTER I.

1. WILLIAM LEWIS, came from England in the ship Lion, landing in Boston, September 16, 1632. He was admitted freeman November 6, 1632, and was a member of the Baintree Company, which in August, 1633, located at Cambridge, Mass. In 1635 he resided at the northwest corner of Winthrop and Holyoke streets, Cambridge. He moved to Hartford in 1636, being one of its earliest settlers. In 1641 he was a juryman and selectman. In 1659 he removed to Hadley, Mass., signing an agreement with his son William Lewis, Jr., Luke Hitchcock, and others, in all fifty-nine persons, to do so, and thus became one of the founders of Hadley. He represented Hadley in the General Court in 1662, and Northampton in 1665. In 1663 he was one of ten troopers in The Hampshire Troop. His wife's name was Felix ——. She died in Hadley, April 17, 1671. The will of Thomas Olcott, of Hartford, November, 1653, leaves
