AMERICA TO-DAY: OBSERVATIONS AND REFLECTIONS

Published @ 2017 Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd

ISBN 9780649222599

America to-day: observations and reflections by William Archer

Except for use in any review, the reproduction or utilisation of this work in whole or in part in any form by any electronic, mechanical or other means, now known or hereafter invented, including xerography, photocopying and recording, or in any information storage or retrieval system, is forbidden without the permission of the publisher, Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd, PO Box 1576 Collingwood, Victoria 3066 Australia.

All rights reserved.

Edited by Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd. Cover @ 2017

This book is sold subject to the condition that it shall not, by way of trade or otherwise, be lent, re-sold, hired out, or otherwise circulated without the publisher's prior consent in any form or binding or cover other than that in which it is published and without a similar condition including this condition being imposed on the subsequent purchaser.

www.triestepublishing.com

WILLIAM ARCHER

AMERICA TO-DAY: OBSERVATIONS AND REFLECTIONS

America To-Day

Crown 800, clath, price 3s. 6d.

AMERICA AND THE AMERICANS

From a French point of view

LONDON; WILLIAM HEINEMANN

America To-Day

Observations & Reflections

By William Archer

London William Heinemann 1900

PREFACE

THE letters and essays which make up this little book appeared in the Pall Mall Gazette and Pall Mall Magazine respectively, and are reprinted by kind permission of the Editors of these periodicals. My original intention in crossing the Atlantic was simply to make a study of the American stage. The enlargement of my scheme, to which this book owes its existence, was due to the personal suggestion of Mr. Astor, whose encouragement overcame the diffidence I felt in venturing so far beyond the limits of my own narrow province. Whether Mr. Astor's encouragement was well inspired it is for the reader to determine. Let me only say that while no one can recognise more clearly than I the superficiality of the hasty survey here recorded, I should have been exceedingly sorry not to have put on record a few of the innumerable pleasant impressions I received during my eight-weeks' stay in the United States.

PREFACE

The letters which form the first part of the book were published in the New York Times (simultaneously with their appearance in England) under the title of "American Jottings." This word exactly describes them; they are jottings and no more. As the term, however, seemed scarcely applicable to the essays composing the second part of the book, I was forced to choose for it a more general, and I fear more pretentious, title.

In the letters, and in the last of the essays, I have inserted a few passages which were in my mind, if not on paper, from the first, and were omitted only from considerations of space. All after-thoughts have been added either in footnotes or in postscripts. The essay on "American Literature," which appeared in the Pall Mall Magazine about eighteen months ago, has been largely re-written and brought up to date.

LONDON, October 31, 1899.

CONTENTS

PART I

OBSERVATIONS

Obstations
LETTER I: The Straits of New York—When is a Ship not a Ship?—Nationality of Passengers— A Dream Realised	PAGE 3
LETTER II: Fog in New York Harbour—The Cus- toms — The Note-Taker's Hyperæsthesia — A Literary Car-Conductor—Mr. Kipling and the American Public—The City of Elevators	11
LETTER III: New York a much-maligned City—Its Charm—Mr. Steevens's Antitheses—New York compared with Other Cities—Its Slums—Ad- vertisements—Architecture in New York and Philadelphia.	20
LETTER IV: Absence of Red Tape—"Rapid Transit" in New York—The Problem and its Solution—The Whirl of Life—New York by Night—The "White Magic" of the Future	32
LETTER V: Character and Culture—American Universities—Is the American "Electric" or Phlegmatic?—Alleged Laxity of the Family Tie—
Postscript: The University System	43