MARYARD COLLEGE LIBRARY
THE BEQUEST OF
THEODORE JEWETT EASTMAN
1931

" The old-time Doctor rises into view ;
A "well-read" man he was, and much he knew,
For he was "College-bred," and in the eyes
Of simple folk, no man could be more wise.
His modest sign that hung above the gate,
Failed not his many virtues to relate :
" Physician, Surgeon, Accoucheur," in one ;
And yet with these the list was but begun.
And so whate'er his patients might befall,
He ready stood to answer every call.
On ambling horse he rode the country o'er,
And carried hope and help from door to door
Where'er he went, to gentle babe or sire,—
Pain fled away and fever cooled its fire.
He promptly, bravely took his part and place ;
And every station did his genius grace,
Heroic man ! He did his duty well,
He fought for others till at last he fell.
Above his grave we need no column raise,
He lives immortal in our love and praise !"

—The Doctor.

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that proper record-keeping is essential for the integrity of the financial system and for the ability to detect and prevent fraud.

2. The second part of the document outlines the various methods used to collect and analyze data. It describes the use of statistical techniques to identify trends and anomalies in the data, and the importance of using reliable sources of information.

3. The third part of the document discusses the role of the auditor in the process. It explains that the auditor's primary responsibility is to provide an independent and objective assessment of the financial statements. This involves a thorough review of the records and a comparison of the results with the applicable accounting standards.

4. The fourth part of the document discusses the importance of transparency and accountability in the financial system. It notes that the public has a right to know how their money is being spent, and that this information should be made available in a clear and accessible format.

5. The fifth part of the document discusses the role of the government in the financial system. It explains that the government has a responsibility to ensure that the financial system is stable and that the interests of the public are protected. This involves a combination of regulation and oversight.

6. The sixth part of the document discusses the importance of education and training in the financial system. It notes that a well-educated and trained workforce is essential for the effective operation of the financial system, and that ongoing education and training are necessary to keep up with the rapidly changing nature of the industry.

7. The seventh part of the document discusses the importance of innovation and technology in the financial system. It notes that the use of new technologies can help to improve the efficiency and effectiveness of the financial system, and that it is essential to embrace innovation and to invest in research and development.

8. The eighth part of the document discusses the importance of international cooperation in the financial system. It notes that the financial system is a global one, and that it is essential to work together to address the challenges that it faces. This involves a combination of dialogue and collaboration.

9. The ninth part of the document discusses the importance of risk management in the financial system. It notes that the financial system is inherently risky, and that it is essential to have a robust risk management framework in place to identify and mitigate these risks. This involves a combination of assessment and monitoring.

10. The tenth part of the document discusses the importance of consumer protection in the financial system. It notes that consumers are often at a disadvantage in the financial system, and that it is essential to have strong consumer protection measures in place to ensure that they are treated fairly and that their interests are protected. This involves a combination of regulation and oversight.
