Author's Note.

IT is three years since the last part of this book was published, and yet my leisure time since then has been entirely devoted to the preparation of the part now issued. Indeed, since the work commenced more than six years ago I have said farewell to leisure. Subscribers have been very long-suffering about the delay, and I take this opportunity of warmly thanking them. They will, I am sure, realize that it is impossible to hurry a work of this kind.

This part is the largest and most laborious yet published; but the next will be smaller, and I have good hopes of finishing it this year. It will deal with the churches in the Hundreds of Clun and Purslow, including Clun, Bettws-y-Crwyn, and Lydbury North. This fifth part will complete the first volume, dealing with the churches of the southern portion of the county.
