PREFACE

The accompanying work includes in books, pamphlets, and similar publications, the literature of Chinese immigration and its various phases. Articles in the newspaper and periodical press have not been included, such references being sufficiently numerous to form a separate monograph of considerable volume.

With few exceptions the many documents published by the United States government have also been omitted. The list prepared in the Library of Congress under the direction of Mr. Griffin is apparently so complete that further work in that direction is rendered unnecessary.

Endeavor has been made to include all references possible, and while without doubt some have been overlooked, it is hoped that such omissions have been few and unimportant.
