THE object of this little volume is to collect information. A plan has been proposed, and favourably entertained by the Delegates of the University Press, for publishing a selection from the works of Wyclif. It is, of course, necessary as a first step to ascertain, as exactly as possible, which of his works are extant, and where the MSS. of them are to be found. And this, which might appear at first sight a very simple matter, has proved to be so difficult, that without the publication of a tentative Catalogue it seemed hopeless to arrive at any satisfactory result.

Wyclif is a very voluminous, a proscribed, and a neglected writer. Hardly any of his works have been printed; the MSS. are usually anonymous, and, owing to various causes, so little known, that the most frequented libraries may be in unconscious possession of them. In the present Catalogue MSS. are mentioned from the Bodleian, from Lambeth, and from the College libraries both of
