TRANSLATOR'S PREFACE

Since the authors of the lectures here translated are not yet well known in America, a word of introduction should be accorded. Senior Professor Friedrich Wilhelm Bernhard Bornemann, Th. D., born in 1858, was a pupil of Ritschl, and received his education at Göttingen and Leipsic. He has taught in the University of Göttingen, in the cloister school at Magdeburg, and in the University of Basel. Since 1902 he has been pastor at Frankfort-on-the-Main, and senior since 1906. He has written on general and theological education and on missions, and has furnished a commentary on Thessalonians.

Pastor Willy Veit, who was born at Frankfort in 1872, studied at Erlangen and Berlin, served as pastor of the German Church at Manchester, England, from 1898 till 1905, and since 1905 has been pastor of St. Katharine's at Frankfort and editor of Die Gemeinde, the organ there of "modern" theology.
