INTRODUCTION.

The aim of the author in presenting this little work is to aid the prospective mother during her pregnancy, and to guide her in those trying days and weeks after the baby has come and the trained nurse has been dismissed. He has endeavored to explain some of the many perplexing questions which present themselves to her at these times, but which she considers hardly necessary to discuss with her physician.

It is hoped that the busy practitioner may find in the book a not unworthy adjunct to his own advice, especially since it is not intended in any sense of the word as a medical guide. The writer has tried, rather, to impress upon the mother who reads it the importance of co-operating with her physician and early consultation with him on all those matters which properly demand his attention.

1. The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that this is crucial for ensuring the integrity of the financial data and for facilitating audits.

2. The second part of the document outlines the various methods used to collect and analyze data. It includes a detailed description of the sampling techniques employed and the statistical tests used to evaluate the results.

3. The third part of the document presents the findings of the study. It shows that there is a significant correlation between the variables being studied, and it provides a clear explanation of the reasons behind this relationship.

4. The final part of the document offers conclusions and recommendations based on the findings. It suggests that further research is needed in certain areas and provides practical advice for improving the accuracy of the data collection process.
