TO
MR. THOMAS REYNOLDS,
THE FOLLOWING SHEETS
ARE MOST RESPECTFULLY INSCRIBED
BY HIS FRIEND AND SERVANT,
THE AUTHOR.

PREFACE.

THE following sheets were written for the Author's own amusement, without any reference to publication ; which circumstance, however, is not mentioned as any excuse for faults that may be apparent, or for omissions, perhaps too readily to be perceived ; but, on the contrary, in order that the Reader may be aware that the observations therein contained were not lightly or heedlessly thrown together ; for if it be true that self generally engrosses our chief care and solicitude, this will go far to prove, that any thing done with a view to the gratification of self, will be executed as well as the abilities of the performer will admit.

This avowal is contrary to the one in general use when any work is submitted to the consideration of the public, but it is not the less true. Neither has the Writer been induced by the solicitation of friends to alter his first resolution, or by them been tempted to give publicity to that which was originally
