PREFACE.

CRITIC.—I never read a more improbable story in my life.

AUTHOR.—Notwithstanding, it may be true.

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS.

Ginx's Baby, his Birth and other Misfortunes,	Frontispiece
MR. PHILOSOPHER :—"I understand you to say this is your thirteenth child. How came you to have so many?"	34
"He was nestled in kind serge-covered arms: kisses rained upon him from chaste lips,"	45
"Mrs. Ginx went home jubilant,"	56
"We've 'ad so many on 'em that Ginx was for drownin' the thirteenth,"	58
"He would say that if such justice were to be done as his friend had urged, the Kingdom of Heaven in England would rush to its fall,"	83
"Order! order, gentlemen! This is a great occasion; let us show unanimity!"	91
"Angry knots were formed, and the noble chairman found that he could not restore order,"	125
"The Board of Guardians took a good look at him,"	137
"The two servants descended the steps, and looked at the miserable boy without touching him,"	168
"The Fogies tipped young Ginx,"	205
"I saw the dull flash as of a human face in the gloom,"	223
