INTRODUCTION

THIS life of Christ is the product of a summer's vacation, and has all been written while away from home. For this I am glad, because I had no temptation to consult the authority of the commentators. I wanted this story to be the picture of Jesus just as he appears to me. I make no excuse, therefore, for the personal point of view. As I shall not try to verify now my interpretations, I cannot vouch for them all. I hope only I shall make plain to you my Christ.

I had with me this summer but two helps: First, a combined Gospel narrative, in which the four Gospels are united into one. This work has been done by Prof. Theodore G. Soares, of the University of Chicago, and some of his friends. It contains the biblical language only, and the material is arranged chronologically. The use of this book will account for some minor variations from Stevens and Burton's Harmony.

The second aid was some notes on the life of Christ that I had written several years ago as the basis of a series of lectures.

I have entered on no technical discussion. Every event in the life of Christ has at least been touched upon, and yet I have not aimed to give every detail. I take it for granted that the four Gospels are reasonably well known to my readers. I have tried to give an interpretative account of Christ's life. With this in view there has been an extensive use of the paraphrase. Frankly, my one purpose has been to make all see the real, human, kindly, persecuted Jesus, but to see him through my eyes.

Each of the ten chapters has been read as a sermon to the morning congregation of the Delaware Avenue Baptist Church of Buffalo, N. Y. To my people I express my hearty appreciation for their sympathetic attention and kindly interest.
