PREFACE

TO

SUPPLEMENTAL CATALOGUE, No. I, 1893.

ALL the books added to the Library during the period from September 1887 to August 1891 have been catalogued in the present supplement, which forms the first of a series that, it is hoped, will be continued periodically.

In general form and principle the supplement is uniform with the original Catalogue compiled by Mr. R. L. Chapman, and published in 1889, the arrangement of which, it is believed, has been generally found to facilitate access to the contents of the Library.

Some few errors that unavoidably crept into the original Catalogue, and a few omissions, have been set right in the present volume; and, as the numbers of some of the books have been changed in rearranging portions of the Library, a list of errata has been added.

The present Catalogue has been compiled by Mr. H. W. Fleming, the present Librarian, upon whom the admirable manner in which the work has been carried out reflects the greatest credit.
