THE songs here writ were never heard,
Save by the little Mary-bird;
And less than naught are they— one note
From one small glad bird-mother's throat.

No skill in minstrel-craft is here,
To make these songs sound sweetly clear;
Yet since a child loved what they are,
And, maybe, lists them now, afar, —

A moment, as a drop of dew,
They therefore ask to live for you,
All you on whom the heavens have smiled,
Who hold, or held, or hope a child.
