

COMMEMORATIVE ADDRESSES:
GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS,
EDWIN BOOTH, LOUIS KOSSUTH,
JOHN JAMES AUDUBON,
WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT

Published @ 2017 Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd

ISBN 9780649552719

Commemorative Addresses: George William Curtis, Edwin Booth, Louis Kossuth, John James Audubon, William Cullen Bryant by Parke Godwin

Except for use in any review, the reproduction or utilisation of this work in whole or in part in any form by any electronic, mechanical or other means, now known or hereafter invented, including xerography, photocopying and recording, or in any information storage or retrieval system, is forbidden without the permission of the publisher, Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd, PO Box 1576 Collingwood, Victoria 3066 Australia.

All rights reserved.

Edited by Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd.
Cover @ 2017

This book is sold subject to the condition that it shall not, by way of trade or otherwise, be lent, re-sold, hired out, or otherwise circulated without the publisher's prior consent in any form or binding or cover other than that in which it is published and without a similar condition including this condition being imposed on the subsequent purchaser.

www.triestepublishing.com

PARKE GODWIN

COMMEMORATIVE ADDRESSES:
GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS,
EDWIN BOOTH, LOUIS KOSSUTH,
JOHN JAMES AUDUBON,
WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT

14

COMMEMORATIVE ADDRESSES

*GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS; EDWIN BOOTH
LOUIS KOSSUTH; JOHN JAMES AUDUBON
WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT*

BY
PARKE GODWIN

NEW YORK
HARPER & BROTHERS PUBLISHERS

1895
2. M. 7.

CONTENTS

	PAGE
✓ GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS	3
✓ EDWIN BOOTH	65
LOUIS KOSSUTH	107
JOHN JAMES AUDUBON	149
WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT	195

NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY

GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS

GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS*

GENTLEMEN OF THE CENTURY ASSOCIATION:

We are brought together to-night to do honor to the memory of a fellow-member who had long prized, and adorned our association—whom many of you knew, and knew only to admire and love—George William Curtis. He died on the 31st of August last—the closing day of a brilliant summer—at his home near the shore of the sea whose moans are now his requiem.

It is a sorrowful task for me to utter the memorial words you require, because, although somewhat younger than myself, he was one of my earliest as well as latest friends, with whom I was for some time associated in earnest political and literary work, whom I never approached or even thought of without a glow of affection, and whose loss has filled my eyes, as it has those of many others, with unavailing tears; and yet, so vivid a personality was he to me that, knowing him gone, I cannot, in the phrase of one of our older poets, "make him dead." It is almost impossible for me to think that the manly form so full of activity, and the attractive face always aglow with light and sweetness, are motionless forever; that the voice which music itself attuned to the expression of every noble and tender human sentiment is still, and so still; that the busy brain which forged for us the solid bolts of reason and built the beautiful fabrics of fancy has ceased to work; and that the large, honest, and loving heart will beat no more.

* Originally delivered before the Century Association of New York, and subsequently repeated before the Brooklyn Historical Society and before the New York Civil Service Reform Association.

In complying with your request I shall offer you no biography of Mr. Curtis, for which the time allotted to my task would be inadequate, and I can only refer to those leading events of his life which will enable you to appreciate best his character and services as a writer, a speaker, a citizen, and a man.

Mr. Curtis, although a resident of New York since his fifteenth year, was a native of New England. He was born on the 24th of February, 1824—within that decade which saw the first gleams of a permanent American literature in the writings of Dana, Irving, Bryant, Cooper, Halleck, and the yet unnoted Poe—at Providence, Rhode Island—a State where Roger Williams had early planted the seeds of a true spiritual liberty, and Bishop Berkeley, the friend of Addison, Pope, and Steele, and the founder of an ideal philosophy, had left the traditions of his presence.

His ancestors on both sides were of the Puritan stock—not particularly distinguished as I find, save that his mother's father, James Burrill, Jr., was a Chief Justice of the State and a Senator of the United States, whose last speech and vote were given, a few days before his death, against the territorial extension of slavery.

It was a good stock to spring from—for those grim religionists, who burned witches and Quakers, had in the old world smitten kings to preserve liberty, and in the new, laid the foundations of a democratic empire that now stretches over a continent. That imaginative temperament which peers into the unseen, and gives a mystical predominance to things of the spirit over things of the flesh, often blossoms into the loveliest flowers. Certainly to it we trace nearly all our foremost poets, from him who, as a boy still, sung our first immortal song amid the snow-drifts of the Hampshire hills, to him, our Quaker