

AN ART-STUDENT IN MUNICH, IN TWO
VOLUMES, VOL. II

Published @ 2017 Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd

ISBN 9780649052745

An Art-Student in Munich, in Two Volumes, Vol. II by Anna Mary Howitt

Except for use in any review, the reproduction or utilisation of this work in whole or in part in any form by any electronic, mechanical or other means, now known or hereafter invented, including xerography, photocopying and recording, or in any information storage or retrieval system, is forbidden without the permission of the publisher, Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd, PO Box 1576 Collingwood, Victoria 3066 Australia.

All rights reserved.

Edited by Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd.
Cover @ 2017

This book is sold subject to the condition that it shall not, by way of trade or otherwise, be lent, re-sold, hired out, or otherwise circulated without the publisher's prior consent in any form or binding or cover other than that in which it is published and without a similar condition including this condition being imposed on the subsequent purchaser.

www.triestepublishing.com

ANNA MARY HOWITT

AN ART-STUDENT IN
MUNICH, IN TWO
VOLUMES, VOL. II

AN

ART-STUDENT IN MUNICH.

AN ART-STUDENT IN MUNICH.

BY
ANNA MARY HOWITT.

IN TWO VOLUMES

VOL. II.

LONDON:
LONGMAN, BROWN, GREEN, AND LONGMANS.

1853.

203. f. 137.

CONTENTS OF VOL. II.

CHAP.	PAGE
I. A Picture in Lent—Feet-washing on Green Thursday	1
II. The Holy Week—Easter Eve	11
III. Schwanthaler's Castle of Schwaneck	24
IV. The Model Prison of Bavaria, and the Model Works of Signor S—	35
V. The May-Festival at Starnberg	45
VI. Funeral of the Duchess of Leuchtenberg—The Sendling Battle and Old Munich	62
VII. Return to Munich	74
VIII. A Mournful Wedding—An Incursion of German Teachers —The Student	85
IX. The Boisseree Gallery in the Pinakothek	91
X. Sledging	104
XI. A Students' Torch Procession	118
XII. Street Music—the Antigone	125
XIII. Visit to the great Bronze Foundry	134

CHAP.	PAGE
XIV. Christmas-Day—A Christmas-Tree in a beautiful Home	140
XV. Street Pictures—"The Franciscan is there!"—We reach Nymphenburg	151
XVI. A great Fire at Night	161
XVII. A Visit to the Dead and to the Newly-born	168
XVIII. The Casting of the Sieges-Thor, Bavaria	176
XIX. The Artists' Masked Ball	181
XX. Spring Pictures	195
XXI. New Cartoons—Return to England	210

AN

ART-STUDENT IN MUNICH.

CHAPTER I.

A PICTURE IN LENT. — FEET-WASHING ON GREEN THURSDAY.

IN the garden of one of the churches here, there is a Kreuz-Gang or Via Dolorosa, a number of small shrines or "Stations" erected to commemorate the various sufferings of Christ on his way to the Cross. During Lent, prayers are read and chanted every Friday by the priests before these shrines to a considerable assembly of devotees.

I visited this Kreuz-Gang the other Friday, but did not observe anything very remarkable in the ceremony.

A few priests in robes of sky-blue and white, attended by a number of choristers, and with a veiled crucifix borne before them, were slowly progressing from station to station, praying and singing, whilst a crowd composed of all ranks, and principally of women, followed them, also singing and praying.

I observed a number of heads looking down into the church garden from the windows of the neighbouring houses. A knot of maid-servants at one of these windows seemed especially edified by observing the actions and bearing of one of the officiating priests. I wondered within myself whether he was the priest of whom I had once heard a strange and affecting history from Fraülein Sänchen.

He was an extraordinary man, at all events—whether this sad history attached to him or not. He was singularly handsome, and knew it well enough. He marched along with the step of a soldier rather than with the step of a priest: and with his keen eagle's face gazing upon his missal, and the expression was full of a certain scorn; the crisp locks of his black hair escaping from beneath his priest's cap fell upon his priest's robes in unusual luxuriance. He was no meek follower of Christ. The carnal, not the spiritual sword belonged to that hand, the epaulette to that shoulder, not purple and fine linen. The lines of the strong passionate face told of a proud nature hardened into a bitter scorn through a mistaken vocation; it was a countenance about which to weave strange imaginary histories.

I have just witnessed the ceremony of the Feet-washing, which has been announced for this month past as one of the great sights of the season. My good friend at the Königs Ministerium kept his word faithfully, and procured tickets for us. Accordingly, Myra Amsel and I have seen the whole ceremony. At nine o'clock Myra was with me, and, early as it was, Madame Thekla advised us to set off to the Palace, as people were always wild about places, and if we came late, spite of our tickets, we should see nothing. The good old soul also accompanied us, on the plea that, as she was big and strong, she could push a way for us through the crowd, and keep our places by main force. She stood guard over us—the good creature!—for two mortal hours, and when the door at length was opened by a grand lacquey, had the satisfaction of seeing us step through the very first. But before this happy moment arrived, we had to wait, as I said, two hours; and leaving, therefore, the patient old lady as our representative before the little door which led into the gallery of the Hercules Hall, whither our tickets admitted us, and before which door no one but ourselves had yet presented themselves, Myra and I ranged along the white-washed galleries of the old portion of the Palace in which we were. Cannot you see these vistas of white-washed wall, with grim old portraits of powdered ladies and gentlemen, in hoops, ruffles, gold lace, and ermine, and framed in black frames, interspersed amid heavy wreaths and arabesques of stucco?—dazzlingly white walls, dazzlingly white arched ceilings, diminishing in long perspective! Now we came upon a strange sort of little kitchen in the thick wall, where a quaint copper kettle, standing on the now cold hearth, told of coffee made for some Royal servant some hours before; now we were before the door of some Kammer-Jungfer; now in a gallery with the white-wash, but without the portraits, where opposite to every door stood a large white cupboard—a goodly row of them.

And now below stairs, on passing through a doorway, you stood upon a low terrace; above your head a ceiling rich with ponderous wreaths of fruit and flowers, and other stucco ornaments which probably, once upon a time, had been gilt; faded frescoes representing gods, goddesses, and Cupids, mingling with the other ornaments. From the wall protruded like a hideous and grotesque excrescence, a grotto-work summer-house, a perfect incrustation of pebbles and spars, and with an ugly Triton on either side the entrance bearing a brown marble shell before him.