The following table shows the results of the survey conducted in the year 1950. The data is presented in a tabular format, detailing the various aspects of the study. The table is organized into columns representing different categories and rows representing specific data points. The information is presented in a clear and concise manner, allowing for easy comparison and analysis of the results.

Category	Sub-category	Value
Group A	Item 1	12
	Item 2	15
	Item 3	18
	Item 4	20
Group B	Item 1	10
	Item 2	12
	Item 3	14
	Item 4	16
Group C	Item 1	8
	Item 2	10
	Item 3	12
	Item 4	14
Group D	Item 1	6
	Item 2	8
	Item 3	10
	Item 4	12

The data indicates that there is a clear trend across all groups, with values increasing from left to right within each group. This suggests a positive correlation between the sub-categories and the measured values. The overall results are consistent and provide a clear picture of the survey findings.

PREFACE.

ONE thing and one only makes the record of the meeting at Exeter Hall on the 24th September worthy of separate publication, and confers on it a certain distinction. Not what was said, but where it was said, in unison with what other voices, and in what atmosphere of sympathy, as sincere as it was universal, gives to the words spoken here their true point and emphasis. Never before have Americans, speaking in England, felt so clearly that they were in the land, not only of their fathers, but of their brethren,

“Their elder brothers, but one in blood.”

For the first time their common English tongue found its true office when Mother and Daughter spoke comforting words to each other over a sorrow, which, if nearer to one, was shared by both. English blood, made up of the best drops from the veins of many conquering, organizing, and colonizing races, is a blood to be proud of, and most plainly vindicates its claim to dominion when it recognizes kinship through sympathy with what is simple, steadfast, and religious in character. When we learn to respect each other for the good qualities in each, we are helping to produce and foster them.

It is often said that sentimental motives never guide or modify the policy of nations, and it is no doubt true that statecraft more and more means business, and not sentiment; yet men as old as the late Lord Stratford de Redcliffe could remember at least two occasions during their lives when a sentiment, and that, too, a literary sentiment, had much to do with the shaping of events and the new birth of nations. We would not over-estimate the permanent value of this outburst of feeling on both sides the sea, of this grasp of the hand across a recent grave, but we may safely affirm that they were genuine, and
