INTRODUCTION

THIS slight sketch of the life and work of Lady Fry of Darlington has been undertaken at the request of some of those who worked under her guidance in one or more of the public objects she had at heart. It is thought that it may be useful to women desirous of following in her steps and unable now to obtain from her that hearty encouragement which she was always so ready to give to any who came to her with an earnest desire to do useful work.

My thanks are due to the members of Lady Fry's family and several of her old friends for supplying me with information, although in the first instance they doubted whether the life of one who had lived so much within her own home, and who had never sought publicity for its own sake, was a fitting subject for publication.

ELIZA ORME.
