THE contents of the following pages first saw the light a year ago in the columns of United Ireland. Several of my friends have considered them worthy of reproduction in book form. This reason partly explains their reappearance; but it is also explained by my desire for a remembrance—even in the shape of so imperfect a record—of many friendships made, and of many novel experiences in the course of some three years of travel through the Greater Ireland beyond the seas. This book does not pretend to be an exhaustive treatment of its subject. It is but a collection of hasty sketches by the way side. Such as it is I dedicate it to those generous and kindly sympathisers with my country and her cause abroad, who loving her helped me to work for her.

THOS. H. GRATTAN ESMONDE.
