DRAMATIC PORTRAITS

"A new force in dramatic criticism. Clever, fearless, shrewdly analytical, splendidly irreverent where the supposed dramatic gods are concerned, yet paying generous tribute to those who practise the dramatic art according to its highest canons, Mr. Howe offers us a volume which is refreshing in its style, exhilarating in its clearness of vision, and finely satirical in its rejection of the mere fustian of the theatre." GLOBE.

"A notable addition to dramatic criticism of today." STANDARD.

"Good, serious criticism, as all Mr. Howe's is." MANCHESTER GUARDIAN.

"He talks delightfully about our principal dramatic authors—Sir Arthur Pinero, Mr. Henry Arthur Jones, Mr. Hubert Henry Davies, Mr. Granville Barker, Mr. Bernard Shaw, Mr. John Galsworthy; and he talks the best kind of sense—sense tempered with taste and a feeling for all that matters and all that is sincere in the people he discusses." SATURDAY REVIEW.

"We know of no recent work which is calculated to stimulate the spirit of criticism in so wholesome a manner as Mr. Howe's, and to place theatrical criticism on a more lofty plane than it at present occupies." NEW YORK DRAMATIC MIRROR.

"They do not differ in plan from ordinary dramatic criticism, but excel most of it in scholarship, in felicity of style, in aptness of quotation and illustration, in ingenuity of special pleading, and general consistency. Mr. Howe has the modern drama at his fingers' ends," NEW YORK NATION.
