PREFACE.

THIS small book has in substance already appeared in a series of articles contributed to the 'Scotsman,' entitled the "Municipality of Berlin." It has been represented to me that the information given is fitted to be useful to persons who, like myself, are engaged or interested in different branches of Local Government. In the hope that it may be so, I have yielded to the suggestion of friends to cast the articles into the present handy form.

In all branches of civic administration I have found the Berlin Corporation eager to learn from other towns on the Continent and in Great Britain, and to adopt whatever improvements they can apply to their own affairs. In many
