OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

"This is a really admirable little work. We have read nothing so fresh, so suggestive on the social problem for some time. It is so bright and clear and unconventional that any intelligent person who reads it is likely to think more seriously and more intelligently about that problem than he has done before. To say that a little work of about 160 pages sets one thinking and stirs our better feelings is high praise, and that praise we can unreservedly give to this suggestive little work."—Daily Chronicle.

"We have not for a long time read a book which has attracted us more. It is one of those thoughtful works which set the reader thinking, and that in a hopeful and earnest fashion, with a notion that something may evolve itself from the mental labour."—Westminster Review.

"Is of considerable present interest, and deserves to be widely read and digested. A very keen-sighted book, which puts clearly and forcibly what many are vaguely thinking, and what may, with great advantage, be suggested to a far wider circle."—Economic Review.

"We may commend this little volume as an original treatise—well written and readable. The general line of argument is to point to the facility with which public control might now be attained over great branches of industry."—Athenæum.

"A sound argument in favour of the position that, through an irresistible tendency, the small master, the small merchant, and the small dealer, are played out. Read, mark, learn, and inwardly digest the book, is our advice to all readers."—North British Economist.

"He discusses with vigour and suggestiveness the forces which are tending in modern England to the extinction of small businesses. He has something which is both wise and wholesome to say in regard to the social elevation of the people."—Leeds Mercury.

"I would beseech you to remember that, if the Church fails to set forth to the world a higher spirit than the world can produce it fails altogether."—BISHOP OF LONDON'S New Year's Message for 1900.

"All that opposes brotherhood in the Churches must be cast out. The test of a standing or falling Church is its influence on the brotherhood of mankind."—Dr. CLIFTON at Leeds, Sept. 27, 1899.

P R E F A C E

A PRECISE, definite, and direct application of religious principles to our commercial affairs is the great need of our times.

This small book is a plea for such application, and an attempt to indicate the only way in which it can be made on any adequate and effective scale.
