ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Several hundred individuals have given valuable assistance in this investigation. Many men and women have spent hours at the tiresome task of going over long lists of names in the work on church attendance. In addition to these, church clerks, treasurers, and pastors have done much in looking up and correcting statistical data. So large is the number that all who have helped cannot be mentioned by name, and it is hoped that they will accept this as an expression of the authors' appreciation and gratitude.

To the late Prof. D. Collins Wells, of Dartmouth College, the authors are particularly indebted for his assistance in determining the changes in the cost of living in the different towns and for many valuable suggestions.
