PREFACE

THE purpose of this book is to help the people to an understanding of the relationship between modern movements of religious psychology and the Orthodox Church. As promised, the chapters are as originally delivered on the lecture platform in various parts of the country. They are purposely popular in form, being designed to help the average reader, as an everyday book of reference. The terminology of both the New Thought and the Church is used, so that many honest Christians who have been striving to relate the two may easily grasp their true relationship and so attain a position that will keep them close to the heart of truth, and at the same time near the crucified and risen Christ. It is the purpose of these lectures to show that the Church of Christ has all the worth of New Thought and Christian Science, without many of their crucial errors. There are abundant quotations, and some repetitions that seem worth saying for emphasis' sake. With an earnest prayer for their helpfulness, on their wider mission for truth and health, the author sends them forth.
