IN offering these verses to the public, the Author is very sensible that they have many deficiencies. Yet, as he conceives they set forth high and holy truths simply and practically, he would fain hope, however feeble his numbers, that they may serve, by God's blessing, to cheer on a few of his fellow-travellers in the great pilgrimage of life, and lead all into whose hands they may come to contend the more earnestly for the "faith once delivered to the saints."

Easter 1850.
