CONTENTS.

INTRODUCTORY p. 1

Ancient principles to be reconciled with modern modes.
Law-courts not the way. Might not synodical action help us? The two blots.

I.

EARLY CHURCH PERIOD p. 6

Church authority given by our Lord—exercised by bishops—aggrandised by Christian emperors—distinction between the civil and ecclesiastical—gradation of appeals. Did the emperors interfere? Church's voice against secular assumption. Difficulty of the mutual relation.

II.

ANGLO-SAXON CHURCH p. 16

Close relations of Church and State—separate jurisdiction—direction of appeals. Temporalty adding sanction to Church law.

III.

NORMAN CONQUEST TO HENRY THE EIGHTH p. 20

Civil and ecclesiastical courts separated. Spiritual causes go to spiritual persons. Constitutions of Clarendon. Steps of appeal. Archbishops' Court final. Complications. Law remained the same.

IV.

HENRY THE EIGHTH TO WILLIAM THE FOURTH p. 28

Restraint of appeals—submission of clergy—appeals to Crown in Chancery—Court of Delegates. Its composition. Thomas Cromwell. Reformatio—small resort to delegates in doctrinal and disciplinal matters—all such cases—Whiston's case—doubts of the judges.

V.

WILLIAM THE FOURTH TO THE PRESENT
TIME p. 44

Delegates' Court abolished—appeals henceforth to Privy Council—why that recommended. Creation of Judicial Committee—appeals passed over to it. Was there a mishap? What the Commissioners wanted—what the Act said—Royal Speech—Lord Brougham—Bishop Blomfield. Church Discipline Act—action in 1850—legislation of 1876. Is this the "Reformation settlement?"

VI.

CHANGES UNDER PUBLIC WORSHIP REGULATION ACT p. 62

Facilis descensus—way pointed out before—Church Courts in disfavour. Executions under P. W. R. A.—a new Court and a new Judge—cucullus non facit monachum—old Official Principals extinct. Hitherto grievance in Court of final appeal, now that plus recent extinction.

VII.

SUGGESTIONS p. 72

The Law says, The Church has authority in controversies of faith. Then why not take her ruling in matters within her competence? whether directly through synodical action, or by a spiritual court freely delegated by synodical authority. No affront to constitutional views of supremacy.
