"FOR LIBERTY! —————
Go seek the mountain tops,
Where with the crashing pines the North-wind revels!—
Go where the Eagle and the Mammoth dwell,
'Midst mightier elements:—WHERE NATURE IS,
AND MAN IS NOT!"

PREFACE.

NEVER for a moment dreaming of dipping into a "PREFACE" myself, it would be a matter of supererogation and inconsistency to inflict one, could I not turn it to the delightful use of conveying to WILLIAM HARRISON AINSWORTH, Esq., my most sincere thanks for his kindness in permitting a re-publication of the following little sketches (originally deemed worthy of a place in "Colburn's New Monthly Magazine"); and furthermore, of making it the medium of imploring the worthy Reader—who may possibly have been sent into the world endowed with the criticising temperament of a "FADLADEEN"—to bear in mind, that this, being the first bantling I have ever palmed upon Public Charity, is entitled to all the extra indulgencies usually bestowed on the happy enjoyers of Primogeniture,—an attribute that, like Charity, is universally allowed to hide a multitude of sins.
