PREFACE.

THE pages contained in this volume complete the Rolls of Hugh de Welles. The work of preparing them for the press has been performed by the General Editor, who has received, and desires to acknowledge, much valuable assistance. The Rev. H. E. Salter, M.A., has kindly collated many of the transcripts with their original; Prebendary Hingeston-Randolph has read most of the pages in type, and while detecting some errors, offered very useful suggestions, which however, could only be followed as far as the plan of the work allowed. The Rev. W. O. Massingberd, M.A., examined the identifications of all the Lincolnshire names, and supplied many modern equivalents to the old forms—an undertaking only possible to one thoroughly at home in Lincolnshire topography. To each of these authorities thanks are offered for contributing to Volume III much of the accuracy and usefulness which it is hoped it will be found to possess.
