AND SIMPKIN AND MARSHALL, LONDON.

TRANSLATIONS.

I.

Second Edition, Revised.

The Nine Books of the History of HERODOTUS, translated from the Text of Thomas Gaisford, D.D. Dean of Christ Church, and Regius Professor of Greek. With Notes, Illustrative and Critical; and a Geographical Index, defining the situation of every place mentioned by Herodotus, with its Longitude and Latitude. To which are prefixed, a Summary of the History, and an Introductory Essay. By PETER EDMUND LAURENT, Translator of the "Odes of Pindar, into English Prose," Author of an "Introduction to the Study of Ancient Geography," &c. &c. Second Edition, with numerous and important Corrections, additional Notes, and a Map of the World of Herodotus. 2 vols. 8vo. 11. 4s.

II.

The TRAGEDIES of ÆSCHYLUS, complete; translated into English Prose, from the Texts of Blomfield and Scholefield, with Notes. Second edition. 8vo. 10s. 6d.

III.

The BACCHÆ and HERACLIDÆ of EURIPIDES, translated into English Prose, from the Text of Elmsley; with Notes. 8vo. 4s. 6d.

IV.

ARISTOPHANES, in English Prose: viz. the ACHARNIANS, KNIGHTS, WASPS, and BIRDS, translated into English Prose, by a Graduate of the University of Oxford. 8vo. 10s. 6d.

"Comœdia est imitatio vite, speculum consuetudinum, imago veritatis." Cic. apud Donat. in fragm. de Tragœd. et Comœd.

V.

The ODES of PINDAR, in English Prose, with Explanatory Notes. By Peter Edmund Laurent, of the Royal Naval College, in H. M. Dock Yard, Portsmouth: author of "The Translation of Herodotus," &c. &c. To which is added, West's Dissertations on the Olympic Games, 2 vols. 8vo. 11. 1s.

The Editor of the Literary Gazette, after his notice of Laurent's Introduction to Ancient Geography, states, "Having this author before us, we owe it in justice to him to mention his trustworthy Translation of 'Herodotus,' and his 'Odes of Pindar rendered into English Prose, with Explanatory Notes,' both sterling performances."

VI.

XENOPHON'S ANABASIS, newly translated into English, from the Greek Text of Schneider, by F. C. Belfour, A.M. Oxon. M.R.A.S. and O.T.C.—LL.D. and late Professor of Arabic in the Greek University of Corfu. 8vo. 8s.

The advantage of this edition over others is that it is more liberal, and every book, chapter, and sentence, may be referred to without the slightest difficulty.

VII.

THUCYDIDES, in English; chiefly from the Translation of Hobbes of Malmsbury; with Notes and various Readings, an Analysis, and a Collation of other Editions with the amended Text of Bekker. A new edition, 8vo. 12s.

In offering the present edition of Hobbes's Translation of Thucydides to the public, the Editor deems it proper to state, that the whole has been carefully revised and corrected. The language of Hobbes, in many places quite obsolete, and therefore obscure, has been modernized; and where necessary, new Notes have been added. To render this more useful than former editions, a Collation of the Texts of Bever and other editors with that of Bekker, is inserted in the Notes, together with a new Translation of passages in which the former differ from the latter. The division of the Books into Chapters, which renders references from the Greek perfectly easy, is a great and most conspicuous improvement, and will, it is hoped, recommend the present beyond all preceding editions.

VIII.

The WORKS of HORACE, translated literally into English Prose, by C. Smart, M.A. of Pembroke College, Cambridge. A new and much improved edition. 1 vol. 18mo. 7s.

The Latin Text of this edition has been collated with the editions of Zenonis, and of Fes and Bothe. The readings of Zenonis have generally been adopted; and, when necessary, the Translation of Smart has been changed, in order that it might apply to such readings. The whole of the Translation has been carefully revised and much improved, and several Explanatory Notes have been added.

IX.

The WORKS of VIRGIL, translated literally into English Prose. By Joseph Davidson. With explanatory Notes, and the Latin Text corrected from Heyna. In two pocket vols. 18mo. 9s.

X.

The ODES of PINDAR, in Verse. By West, Green, and Pys. 18mo. 4s.

XI.

ARISTOTLE'S RHETORIC, in English. 12mo. 3s.

VI.

POEMATATA SELECTA ITALORUM, qui Seculo Decimo Sexto

Latine scripserunt, nonnullis Adnotationibus illustrata, 8vo. Oxon. 1808. 7s. 6d. boards.

This very interesting compilation is founded on the first edition printed in the year 1684, by Atherbury (afterward Bishop of Rochester), and subsequently edited by the celebrated Alexander Pope. It has now been carefully revised, and is considerably increased by the addition of several very elegant poems not in the former edition. Prefixed are short biographical sketches of the various writers from whose writings this volume is selected.

In the Gentleman's Magazine, May 1835, the Rev. Mr. Tate inserted an article on Micullus and Melancthon, in which that eminent Scholar had occasion to quote from the above, and to call it "The enlarged and well-illustrated edition."

VII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

I.

QUESTIONS ON ADAM'S ROMAN ANTIQUITIES. Printed

uniformly and forming a useful appendix to that work. Second Edition. Demy 8vo. 6s.—interleaved 7s. 6d.

These Questions are extensively used as a Class Book at Winchester College, King's College, and other great Scholastic Establishments. The Publisher also feels pleasure in extracting from the Rev. Mr. Major's standard edition of "Adams's Roman Antiquities," the following complimentary reference to the present Work:

"I would further suggest to the student, as a method of converting the authorities cited to his real improvement, to verify, transcribe, and commit to memory, those that relate to the writers with whom he is most familiar, particularly the poets; in order that the rise or custom, along with the word or phrase derived from it, may be more firmly impressed on his mind. Let him combine with this profitable exercise the use of the excellent series of Questions recently published at Oxford, and his knowledge of the leading facts, no less than the phraseology relating to Roman affairs, will thus become sound and extensive." Preface to the twelfth edition, page v.

II.

AN INTRODUCTION to the STUDY of ANCIENT GEOGRAPHY, with copious Indexes. By Peter Edmund Laurent, of the Royal Naval College, in H. M. Dock Yard, Portsmouth: author of a "New Translation of Herodotus," "The Odes of Pindar in English Prose," &c. Second Edition. To which is added, a SERIES of QUESTIONS adapted to this work. Demy 8vo. 14s.

This volume combines a Treatise and a Dictionary of Ancient Geography; every geographical name that can be found in Thucydides, Herodotus, Livy, and other ancient historians previous to the fall of the Byzantine Empire, may be easily referred to, and its situation ascertained, even without reference to a Map, provided the reader has obtained some general notions of Geography. The young student, by a careful perusal of this work, will be led to consider in its true light the utility of this noble study, as it facilitates so materially the reading of History.

"We have not met with a work of more value to the classical reader than this laborious and very useful volume. The indexes alone are worth half a historical series, as guides to references in esteemed authors, and on every point connected with ancient geography that can interest the scholar or general reader. Brief sketches illustrate these subjects, and, being well arranged, are capable of giving more information in an hour than even intelligent research would be likely to supply in several days. Upon these grounds we hesitate not to declare (in spite of a few foreign idioms which are distinguishable in the author's language) that a companion to the library more useful than Mr. Laurent's 'Introduction' can be found. A word of further praise is not necessary, when we add, that upwards of nine thousand places are designated or described in this single volume." Literary Gazette.

III.

QUESTIONS on ANCIENT GEOGRAPHY, adapted to "Laurent's Introduction," or any other popular work on Ancient Geography, by the Author of "Questions on Adam's Roman Antiquities." Demy 8vo. 1s. 6d. sewed; interleaved 2s.

IV.
