

GOLDEN TREASURY
SERIES; MISCELLANIES

Published @ 2017 Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd

ISBN 9780649649921

Golden Treasury Series; Miscellanies by Edward Fitzgerald

Except for use in any review, the reproduction or utilisation of this work in whole or in part in any form by any electronic, mechanical or other means, now known or hereafter invented, including xerography, photocopying and recording, or in any information storage or retrieval system, is forbidden without the permission of the publisher, Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd, PO Box 1576 Collingwood, Victoria 3066 Australia.

All rights reserved.

Edited by Trieste Publishing Pty Ltd.
Cover @ 2017

This book is sold subject to the condition that it shall not, by way of trade or otherwise, be lent, re-sold, hired out, or otherwise circulated without the publisher's prior consent in any form or binding or cover other than that in which it is published and without a similar condition including this condition being imposed on the subsequent purchaser.

www.triestepublishing.com

EDWARD FITZGERALD

GOLDEN TREASURY
SERIES; MISCELLANIES

Golden Treasury Series

MISCELLANIES

FITZGERALD

Miscellanies

100076

BY

EDWARD FITZGERALD

London

MACMILLAN AND CO., LIMITED

NEW YORK: THE MACMILLAN COMPANY

1900

All rights reserved

PREFACE

OF the pieces which are printed in this volume most have appeared in some form before; but it has been thought that it would be interesting to many to have them brought together.

The Memoir of Bernard Barton was prefixed to a collection of his Letters and Poems published in 1849, the year of his death. This is followed by notices of his death and funeral contributed by FitzGerald to the Ipswich Journal at the time.

Euphranor is printed from a corrected copy of the Dialogue as modified by FitzGerald from the second edition, which to his fastidious taste was disfigured by "some over-smart writing, and some clumsy wording."

The Preface to Polonius has already been reprinted in FitzGerald's Letters and Literary Remains.

On the death of his old friend, the Rev. George Crabbe, Vicar of Bredfield and son of the poet, FitzGerald wrote a short notice of him in the Gentleman's Magazine for November 1857, where it ought to be no longer buried.

The Data for the life of Charles Lamb are frequently mentioned in FitzGerald's letters and are here printed from a copy annotated in his own hand. They do not profess to be exhaustive, and were only intended to serve as a guide to the readers of Lamb's Letters as they originally appeared. The notes in square brackets are added by myself.

The Introduction to Readings in Crabbe was the last work of FitzGerald's pen. The revise of the last proof was not received till after his death.

I ought perhaps to apologize for adding the humorous imitation of an Essay by Sir Arthur Helps, but it seemed too good to be lost on the fly-sheet of a volume in private hands.

The Occasional Verses, as I have explained, have been privately printed, and I do not feel that I need apologize for reproducing them.

WILLIAM ALDIS WRIGHT.

TRINITY COLLEGE, CAMBRIDGE,
15th July 1900.

CONTENTS

	PAGE
MEMOIR OF BERNARD BARTON	1
DEATH OF BERNARD BARTON	49
FUNERAL OF BERNARD BARTON	57
EUPHRANOR	59
PREFACE TO POLONIUS	154
DEATH OF THE REV. GEORGE CRABBE	173
CHARLES LAMB	178
INTRODUCTION TO READINGS IN CRABBE	184
ON RED BOXES	201
OCCASIONAL VERSES	203

MEMOIR
OF
BERNARD BARTON

(From a letter of Bernard Barton's.)

“2 mo, 11, 1839.

5
“Thy cordial approval of my brother John's hearty wish to bring us back to the simple habits of the olden time, induces me to ask thee if I mentioned in either of my late letters the curious old papers he stumbled on in hunting through the repositories of our late excellent spinster sister? I quite forget whether I did or not; so I will not at a venture repeat all the items. But he found an inventory of the goods and chattels of our great-grandfather, John Barton of Ive-Gill, a little hamlet about five or seven miles from Carlisle; by which it seems our progenitor was one of those truly patriarchal personages, a Cumbrian statesman—living on his own little estate, and drawing from it all things needful for himself and his family. I will be bound for it my good brother was more gratified at finding his earliest traceable ancestor such an one than if he had found him in the college of heralds with gules purpure and argent emblazoned as his bearings. The total amount of his stock, independent of house, land, and any money he might have, seems by the valuation to have been £61 6s., and the copy of his admission to his little estate gives the fine as £5, so that I suppose its annual value was then estimated at £2 15s. This was about a century back. Yet this man was the chief means of building the little chapel in the dale, still standing. (He was a churchman.) I doubt not he was a fine simple-hearted noble-minded yeoman, in his day, and I am very proud of him. Why did his son, my grandfather, after whom I was named, ever leave that pleasant dale, and go and set up a manufactory in Carlisle; inventing a piece of machinery¹ for which he had a medal from the Royal Society?—so says Pennant. Methinks he had better

¹ The manufactory was one of calico-printing. The "piece of machinery" is thus described by Pennant:—"Saw at Mr. Bernard Barton's a pleasing sight of twelve little girls spinning at once at a horizontal wheel, which set twelve bobbins in motion; yet so contrived, that should any accident happen to one, the motion of that might be stopped without any impediment to the others."