Dedication

To you, dear children, I present,
This silent work of years,
The monotone of simple joys
Unmingled not with tears;
Not for its mellow meters,
Nor for rhetoric art,
But only one poor merit
Outpouring of the heart.
And though this simple message,
No great success attain,
And serves but to bequeath to you
A mother without stain,
Yet, if in years, temptation come
Among those lines you see,
One word to soothe or strengthen you,
It will suffice for me.
