CONTENTS.

SERMON I.

INDIVIDUALISM : ITS GROWTH AND TENDENCIES.

GENERAL aim of these Sermons—The status of the Individual in ancient life—His status in modern life—The vast change—Christianity preeminently influential in effecting it—The three periods in the history of Individualism—Causes which, in our time, have stimulated the growth of Individualism—Diffusion of political power—Advance of knowledge—Rapid growth of wealth—Enlarged control of the powers of nature—The age one of transition—Consequent instability of popular convictions, and detachment of the Individual from the settled traditions of the past—The Individual reason lifted more and more into the place of the collective, continuous judgment of mankind—Tendencies (1) as seen in the character of individuals and in the general character of the time—(2) Their influence on Morality—(3) Their influence as it affects the Faith, Ordinances, Worship and Polity of the Church—(4) Their influence hostile to the Traditions of the race—(5) Have helped to establish the absolutism of Public Opinion—(6) In sympathy with the two leading phases of Modern Socialism—(7) The tendencies of Individualism illustrated by the present condition and prospects of the Art-work, the Art-impulse of the time.

Pages 1—66.

SERMON II.

INDIVIDUALISM : COUNTER TRUTHS.

The duty devolved upon the teachers and representatives of Christianity—The difficulty and urgency of the Church's work in dealing with the problems presented by the threatened excess of
