PREFATORY NOTE.

AMONG the books treasured at Kimmerghame there is a Bible which has belonged in successive generations to many members of the family. Our researches, when tracing its possessorship, led us to collect records, on behalf of our daughter, of the lives of its many owners, whose descendants may, we hope, like to know in detail how their great-grandfather and their uncles fought in India, lived at sea, and passed the course of daily life at Kimmerghame, more than a hundred years ago.

After reading the familiar letters of these ancestors, their portraits no longer represent to us mere names, but departed personalities with whom we feel intimately acquainted, and whose memory we love and revere.
